

Bachelor of Business Administration— Management Option

Brief description: Graduates of this program are equipped with the tools and techniques that will enable them to assume staff, supervisory, executive, or administrative positions in business, industry, government, and other institutions. Students in the management option follow a program designed broad in scope and aimed at developing the student's grasp of administration and organizational principles. The basic subject matter includes administration, organizational theory, motivational and social systems, human resource management, production systems, and decision and policy-making systems. Some examples of organizations which need expert managers include health care facilities, government agencies, service organizations, educational organizations, industrial companies, retail and wholesale organizations, and transportation businesses.
